From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

Mr. HALE—As the ceremonies attending the election of an INDIAN CHIEF within this Commonwealth, may be gratifying to the curiosity of many of your readers, I transmit a short account of particulars for publication.

AN EYE-WITNESS.

Penobscot Indian Chief.

At Old-town, an Indian village* on an island in Penobscot River, twelve miles from Bangor, in the District of Maine, on Thursday the 19th of Sept. A. D. 1816, the Penobscot tribe of Indians met, and ceremoniously inducted into office a chief Governor, or King. Such has been the immemorial usage of this tribe, and the others in this region, that no chief can be made unless there be at least three tribes present. Hence fifteen or twenty of the chiefs and principal Indians, from the St. John's tribe, and as many from the Passamaquoddy tribe arrived there a short time previously to assist in the ceremonials. In the forenoon of the inauguration or coronation day, the males of Penobscot tribe, convened in the governor's wigwam, on this occasion called a camp, and seated themselves on a platform, according to rank or seniority. John Aitteon and John Neptune, the select candidates for the first and second offices of chief-ships, dressed in scarlet broadcloth, and fancifully decorated, being seated at the head. In front of them, on a piece of blue cloth, a yard square, lay four large medals of silver, three of which were respectively circular and as large as a dollar; the fourth was larger, and in the form of a new moon, and all of them were emblematically indented and inscribed, with ingenious devices, and had elegant ribbons, two feet in length, affixed to each of them and tied at the ends. Shortly after noon, one of the Penobscot Captains, who acted as marshal of the day, was despatched from the camp with a message to the gentlemen spectators present, inviting them to the approaching In-

* This village is compact, and contains near thirty wigwams, all standing on one street, and most of them so near together as to leave only a narrow passage way between them. Each wigwam, constructed according to the old Gothic form with the gable end towards the street, is one story high, twenty or thirty feet long, and half as wide. The plates and the ridge-pole are supported by croches thrust into the ground; the covering is rough boards, battered or thatched with bark. None of the wigwams have any glass windows, and the entrance into them is through a narrow aperture, without door or hinges. Within is a board or plank platform on each side, next the wall, a foot or more above the ground, three or four feet in width; between these platforms the ground is bare. Here it is that fires are built, without any chimney, a hole only being left for the smoke to pass through the roof. Four families frequently live in these wigwams, one at each corner, a fire serving two of them. On the platforms they sit not unlike a tailor on his shop-board;—there they sleep without any other bedding than a few blankets; there they eat their food with their fingers. They have nothing like a bed, nor a chair, or moveable bench; a few iron and wooden vessels for cookery, and a few baskets, are all the furniture they have. At a little distance southerly from the street, is their church, a building 40 by 30, well framed and covered, and one story high. It has a porch, a cupola, and a bell; also, glass windows. Within is a desk for the priest, an altar, two large candlesticks, and other service imitations of the Roman Catholic rites. On the right and left of the desk are a few seats for the deacons and elders; the floor of the church being covered with small hemlock boughs and evergreens, on which sit the Indians, both male and female. Here they worship once a week, and often meet week days for prayer. Near is the burying ground, where stands a large cross or crucifix 15 or 20 feet high; and within the cross itself is cut an aperture, which is covered with glass; under the glass appears the virgin Mary, with her infant Immanuel in her arms. At each grave is a crucifix, some of which are not more than two feet in height.

duction. But all females, natives and English, were peremptorily prohibited an audience. As soon as the guests or spectators, had taken seats on the platforms, covered with blankets, being on the same side of the camp with the Penobscots, and below them; the St. John's representation, in true Indian file, entered the camp, and took their seats on platforms, opposite the Penobscots, according to rank. At their entrance, the Penobscots uncovered their heads and laid by their hats and caps during the ceremonies.

One of the St. John's men soon after being seated, unfolded a piece of cloth brought in by him, which enclosed four strings of wampum, and laid them on the ground near the medals;—the St. John's chief then arose, took one of the strings, addressed Aitteon in a speech of ten minutes long, in the Indian dialect, and laid the wampum at his feet. Three others of the St. John's principals, or captains, in rotation did the same unto three of the Penobscots, according to grade. This betokened a renewal of perpetual friendship, and a mutual assurance of unshaken confidence.—The St. John's chief, then took the medal which lay opposite Aitteon, held it in his hands and addressed him and his tribe in another speech about as long as the former, in the course of which, he came to a momentary pause, three or four times, at each of which pauses, all the Penobscots uttered a deep guttural "aye!"—probably thus signifying their assent to have Aitteon, Neptune, and two others named, the chiefs and first captains of the tribe. As soon as the St. John's chief had done speaking, he advanced and put about the neck of Aitteon, the ribbon with the medal which was the badge of royalty;—this constituted him chief for life and was his inauguration into office. Neptune and three others, were in rotation according to grade, addressed and invested with the ensigns of office, in the same manner, by those of reciprocal rank of the St. John's captains. During these ceremonies, the Passamaquoddy continued under arms without the camp, but near its entrance, and around the flag, which they, by means of a standard twenty feet in height, alternately hoisted and lowered on each officer's being constituted, at the same time firing salutes from a swivel, two pounder. A little prior to the commencement of the ceremonies, their Priest, a Roman Catholic, entered the camp, with the book in his hand, attired in a white robe, and a long scarf, and seated himself next below the first and second chiefs of the Penobscots, Aitteon and Neptune. As soon as the four officers were constituted, he arose & read in the Latin tongue certain appropriate passages from the Scriptures and expounded them in the Indian dialect. He then read a psalm which he and the St. John's men sung; and while in this act of devotion, he and the St. John's men marched out of the camp leaving the Penobscots and joining the Passamaquoddy, all of whom standing in a circle, sung several minutes very devoutly and harmoniously, and closed with their "Te Deum." Sacred music being ended, the priest returned to his house, and the St. John's re-entered the camp, and retook their seats, followed by the Passamaquoddy who seated themselves on the same side immediately below them. Soon commenced their formal salutations.—The St. John's men and the Passamaquoddy in their turn, literally embraced, cheek by jole, the four new-made chiefs and captains, and shook hands with the Penobscots. All spectators then by desire withdrew, to have audience only at the door or sight through the window, or apertures of the camp. At the same time some twenty or more of the native females, or principals, fancifully ornamented with gowgaws, trinkets and finery, entered the camp for the first time, and all the three tribes and the females, arose in an elliptical circle to dance.—In Indian file, and as close together as they could well stand, they having for music a light beat of the drum, and vocal tune, all danced around with a kind of hither-dou-ble shuffle to their places, the females then leaving the camp and the tribes re-setting. The war songs next succeeded. Four of the St. John's chiefs severally and successively arose and sang a short song, somewhat entertaining, which were duly responded by others from the new Penobscot chiefs; during which singing all the Indians echoed a kind of emphasised guttural, betokening approbation, and the swivel was repeatedly discharged. Spectators were re-admitted: a yoke of oxen having been slain, were roasting, rice was boiled, and all welcomed to the feast, served up with more ceremony than neatness. Though the conduct of the day was regular and orderly, and the English spectators were treated with much attention, yet the evening was spent in savage glee and rude hilarity.

Alexandria, September 23.

THE SLOOP PACKET.

Mr. Carter, who, with his family, were passengers on board the above vessel, arrived in town last evening, gives the following account of her:—The sloop Packet, Capt. Van Name, sailed from New-York on Saturday morning, 13th inst. at 9 o'clock, bound to Alexandria—and on the following evening at 10, ran on the Shoals, about 40 to 50 miles north of Cape May, carried away her main boom, and sprung her tiller in several places; at which time the sea broke into the cabin windows and nearly filled the same. She continued beating or thumping from one shoal to another, till it became necessary to throw overboard her deck load, of about 18 to 20 crates, with a view to lighten her. After which, she passed over the shoals, and got into Cape May on Sunday 14th, and lay at anchor till Monday morning, and then got under way and ran up to Cohanzey light house, about 60 miles up the Delaware, at which place got a new boom, etc. and proceeded to sea on Wednesday morning 17th, but meeting contrary winds, returned again to nearly the same place on Thursday morning 18th, where her passengers left her. The wind shortly after becoming favorable, she proceeded to sea again. She did not appear to have sustained any serious damage by running on the shoals before mentioned.

Remarkable Tree.

There is now growing, on a plantation in the neighborhood of this city, an oak tree, whose beauty and vast size entitle it to observation. About 60 years ago it was so small a sapling, that the then owner of the estate bent it down, and cut off the top with his pen-knife. During the present week, the editor, in company with a friend, hastily took its dimensions. At the ground, it would measure at least 25 feet in girth; but as high up as trees are usually chopped its circumference is 15 feet. From the extremity of limb to limb is an average of 111 feet; and the tree covers with its shade, AT MERRIDEN a circumference of 333 or somewhat upwards of 9000 square feet!—It would consequently afford shelter, (allowing two feet to each man,) for four thousand five hundred men! Perhaps there is not so young a tree in the state of which the same can with truth be said.

Raleigh (N. C.) Paper.

From the New-York Daily Adv Sept 18 Extract of a letter received by the Triton, arrived at Boston from Liverpool, dated Aug. 3, 1817.

COTTON MARKETS.

The advices respecting the cotton markets continue to represent a gradual and steady improvement in prices, in London, where East India cotton forms the chief object of interest, there has been a lively demand for that description of cotton, and from 4 to 5000 bales of Bengals were sold at an advance of 3d to 3½ per lb.—Sarats have also risen about 3d per lb and appearances were in favor of a still further advance. At Liverpool, however, which is the great mart for cotton wool, the business was very considerable indeed, amounting to about 16,000 bags, whereof 12,500 to the trade and 35,000 to speculators, at an advance of 3d per lb. in the Bowed and Orleans. 3d in Sea-Islands and Brazils, and a corresponding alteration in all other kinds at the public sale on Friday, the number of buyers in the market warranted the expectation of the Bengals, then offered, fetching good prices; and the mark of those first put up being of remarkable good quality, they were expected to command 14d or even 15½d at which price they accordingly opened; some competition, however, soon showed itself, which led the buyers far beyond their original intentions as to price, and the same mark gradually rose to 15½d, to 15½d and one lot to 15½; this spirit once excited continued to prevail through the remainder of the sale; and the whole of the cotton found buyers at an advance of about 1½d above what was anticipated, the following being about the average prices: very good clean 15 1-2d; good clean 15d; fair clean and good fair 15 3-4d to 15 1-2d; and Bourbon seed 16 5-4d; do clear 17 3-8d. At Glasgow, there was also a brisk demand for cotton, and upwards of 1700 packages were sold as stated below, part of which was taken on speculation, there was no particular attention in the prices, yet the quotations of the former week were more easily obtained.

Sea Islands 2s 8d middling fair, 2s 5d and 2s 5½ 1-2d good fine; 2s 7 1-2d very fine; stained 2s 2d middling; 2s good, Bowed 18d inferior, 21d fine; N. Orleans 21d pretty fair, 21d good.

Yesterday's market.—To attempt a faithful account of yesterday's market is by no means an easy task; every individual being guided by his own private opinion as to buying or selling. The advance in goods is too rapid to excite the confidence usually attending a rising market, its general feature appeared to be, as far as my own observation went, a disinclination on the part of the holders to bring their goods fairly into competition, whilst purchasers were adverse to listen to the enhanced prices they had fixed, and whether owing to policy on the part of the former, or a real scarcity, the stocks on hand were uncommonly low, under such circumstances prices must of course, be advanced; but whether my quotation will, in this instance, be perfectly correct is uncertain; I have been guided as much as possible by the actual business which was transacted combined with regard to the prices asked by the principal dealers and manufacturers.

Flour at Liverpool, Aug. 14th, was 48s. dull.

Prices at Liverpool, Aug. 9.—Ashes, first, pot, U. S. 30; Montreal 45; Am. pearl 1st, 58 a 61; Russian 58 a 60; cocoa, W. American privateers.—If the American government have any regard to their own honor or the peace of the U. States, we trust the following account republished from the Boston Daily Advertiser, respecting two valuable East-India ships, the Grand Para and the Carolina, will command its prompt attention, and that vigorous measures will be taken to bring to condign punishment all those concerned in such a nefarious transaction.—If we are not misinformed, there are persons now in this city who can give important information concerning it.

Boston, Sept. 16.

Capt. Davis, of brig Cherub, from Lisbon, communicates the following:

"The first part of July a Russian brig arrived at Lisbon that had been captured by an Algerine corsair, who put on board the brig eleven Turks, and left the Russian captain, with four of his crew, on board his own vessel. A favorable opportunity offered, when the Russians attacked the Turks and drove them all overboard; the Russian captain was severely wounded in several places, but was likely to recover. Two valuable Portuguese Indianmen were captured the 1st of June in at 33 north, and long 34, 15, west, by an American built schooner, mounting 10 guns, carriages, and carrying 110 men—supposed to be the St. Martin from Buenos Ayres, and formerly the American privateer Congress, commanded by John Deiter. The officers names were 1st, Richard Moon, 2d F. Jenkins, 3d, Sprague. The captain gave a certificate in English that he had captured these vessels. By papers dropped by some of the officers of this privateer, it appears that a person of the name of T. M. Goodwin, of Baltimore, was one with whom they had corresponded. The officers of both the captured ships, who were prisoners on board the privateer for several days, say that all on board spoke no other language than English, and that they were all Americans but one, who was a Spaniard, and that he was a prisoner. The officers and crews of these two ships were landed at the island of Flores, and afterwards brought to Lisbon by the Portuguese frigate San-Pedro—these two ships were considered to be worth upwards of a million and a half of dollars—one the Grand Para, fr. Bengal, the other the Carolina, fr. China—much of the property in these two vessels was owned in small shares by a number of different individuals, who were distressed exceedingly by the loss—and it is difficult to describe the excitement that prevailed against the Americans generally, (after they had got the intelligence of these captures,) and particularly against our government for not taking some more prompt and efficient measures to prevent its citizens from engaging in such acts of plunder and piracy. Every possible embarrassment seems to be laid in the way of American trade, both in Spain and Portugal. Captain Davis experienced not a little of it in the latter place before his licence could be obtained for the shipment of the specie which he has brought on account of the American government.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

Yesterday arrived at this port the ship Triton, captain Holcomb, 29 days from Liverpool, bringing London dates to August 12, and Liverpool to August 14.

We have a mass of papers from England to a very recent date, but they are extremely barren of news, either of a political or speculative character; exhibiting a scene of the most profound tranquillity throughout Europe. Whatever of interest could be found in these journals we have selected.

At Constantinople a plot has been discovered, of which the Aga of the Janissaries is supposed to have been the author. He was removed to a strong castle, and there he died—how, need not be told to those who understand the expeditious treatment of rebels in Turkey. It seems the Grand Seigneur is determined to destroy the formidable power of the Janissaries. It will be an experiment of some difficulty and danger.

Very little business was done at the stock exchange yesterday. Government sent a quantity of exchequer bills for sale, which were readily taken at 50s premium. It is confidently reported at the headquarters of the British army in France that a further reduction of the troops serving in that country will almost directly take place.

A Brussels article of August 9 states that the weather continues to favor the most luxuriant harvest.

Reaping has already commenced in several parishes in the neighborhood of this city, and which, from the delightful state of the weather, may be expected in the course of a few days to become general. The grain is unusually large, and in fine condition. Accounts from every part of this extensive country concur in stating that the crops are likely to prove the most abundant in the memory of man.

[Exeter Post.

The fine weather continues to encourage us with the hope of a rich and bountiful harvest. This confidence spreads beyond the sphere of agriculture, and seems further to animate the operations of commerce. Colonial produce rises in price, while articles of the first necessity are rapidly declining. Thus coffee has improved within a short time by 25s the cwt, and sugar 15s per cwt.

The price of wool appears to be on the rise. Some half bred wool, we understand, has been sold as high as 40s per tod.

Hanburgh, July 25.

The consul general of Russia, residing in this city, has given notice of an ordinance by his majesty the emperor, appointing Russian agents at the quarantine establishments of Sweden and Denmark: namely, at Christiansand, Elsinour, Nybourg, and Toningo, to take care that the coasts of Russia, as well as the ports of the Baltic and the White Sea, are properly watched, so as to prevent the introduction of contagious disorders.

The prince royal of Sweden and his son Oscar are expected at Christiana towards the end of July. The latter will be installed viceroy of Norway by special order of the king. It is not decided whether he will afterwards fix his residence at Christiana.

An obscure allusion is made in several of the German journals to an attempt at assassinating the crown prince of Sweden. It is said that 6 individuals were engaged in this conspiracy, who intended to obtain admission into the palace; but their project being discovered, every precaution was taken to render it abortive.

Letters received yesterday from Rome

The trial of Roger O'Connor has eventuated in his acquittal. The verdict was loudly applauded, and great rejoicings have taken place in consequence of his release.

Mr. Moore, to whom his countrymen have given the surname of Anacretus, who is the author also of some lyrical effusions which enjoy a high reputation in England, and who has printed a poem upon an Oriental subject, for which the London booksellers agreed to give him 3,000 guineas before it was written, is now in Paris.

A letter from Madrid announces that St. Ignace de Loyola has just been named captain general of the Spanish armies, and invested with the Great Cordon of Charles III. It is a new proof of the credit and favor the Jesuits enjoy in the kingdom.

Madame Murat has sold so many diamonds at Vienna that she has actually lowered the price from 100 florins to 70 per carat.

cylinders of steel, each six feet in circumferkept up, and by certain small levers keys on the barrels, constructed with curious and minute pieces of mechanism, the several stops or instruments, as flutes, oboes, violins, clarionets, bassoons, trombones, double drums, &c., are either brought into action, or instantaneously taken off according to the necessary harmonic effect to be produced; by which means a crescent, or diminishing, as powerful as supping, are produced; the former commencing from the most delicate tones of the instrument; and the softness of which sounds like music from afar, gradually increasing to the utmost powers of the instrument; and the latter diminishing in an inverse proportion, with a delicacy of expression not surpassed by the most masterly performers on the respective instruments.

But independently of its mechanical properties, it possesses all the advantages of a keyed instrument, only with additional and superior facilities of performance. It is constructed for six performers to play at the same time, there being six distinct sets of keys, key-boards or scales of notes, each acting upon certain classes and qualities of the instrument, and totally independent of each other. Thus by previous arrangement, six first rate professors would be able to command the entire powers of the organ! The imagination can hardly conceive the effect of a grand symphony thus performed. Some notion of the capacity of this organ may be formed by stating, that the diameter of its largest pipes is 19 inches, exceeding by six inches the diameter of the largest organ in the continent.

WAR IN INDIA.

Calcutta, April 9.
We are concerned to state, that a serious disturbance has just taken place at Cuttock, to which the subjoined letter refers:

Cuttack, March 30.
On the 29th ult. intelligence was received here that a body of insurgents from Goomsur had entered the district of Khourdah, where they were joined by all the Pikes and Doolibegs in that quarter; they burned the town of Khourdah, drove away the Darogah and Tehsildar, burned themselves to the public treasure, said to amount to 15,000 rupees, killed one Barkundah, carried off another, and destroyed several villages in the neighborhood.

A letter from Jaggernaut states their number to be about 1,200; they are daily increasing, and their avowed object is to expel the public officers from the Rajah's state. Their chief is a man of the name of Jubbundoo, who was formerly the sirdar of the Pikes; and the other leaders are Beeleebur and Bhounnour Roy. Some reports state their numbers to be about 500, and the whole district in a state of alarm and dismay. Yesterday afternoon, Colonel O'Halloran sent off two detachments, one to Khourdah, consisting of 115 men, under Lieutenant Pringle, and the other about 140, to Jaggernaut, under Capt. Wallington, to move where ever the insurgents may be, and to chase them, which, by forced marches, it is expected they will be able to accomplish.

The immediate cause of disturbance appears to have been the intrusion of a party of marauders, supposed from the Mahattan frontier, which had entered the Cuttock district through Goomsur, and being joined by a multitude of vagabonds from the pignah of Khourdah, the insurrection soon assumed an alarming character. The town of Khourdah having been taken by them, the gathering rabble, armed with spears, matchlocks, proceeded to Piply, situated midway between the town of Cuttock and Jaggerna-ut, with the view of cutting off the communication between those places, and particularly of securing the person of the Rajah of Khourdah, who is the high priest of the temple, and hereditary sweeper to the great idol. Having got possession of Piply, a party of them was despatched for Jaggernaut, where the Rajah resides; but in the mean time Captain Wallington, with the detachment under his command, had arrived there, and posted himself in the town, to frustrate the object of the insurgents. Letters have been received of the 31st inst, but no rencontre had taken place between them at that period.

We regret to state that an officer, lieutenant Paris, in charge of a reinforcement of troops, had been killed in attempting to cut his way through the rebel party.
A detachment of the body guard, and a large reinforcement of infantry, are said to be under orders to proceed to Cuttock immediately.

Bombay, May 17.
On Tuesday last we received a few Calcutta Journals, reaching down only to the 10th ult. the interruption is occasioned as we formerly stated, by disturbances in Cuttock; some account of which will be found under the Calcutta head. By information received here, dated from Madras the 3d inst. we learn that the right honorable the governor had directed all mails for Calcutta to be forwarded by sea until the ordinary communication by land should be again opened by the dispersion of the insurgents and the restoration of the country to the peace and order in Cuttock; and also that Mr. Spotswood, the collector of Ganjam, had been directed to forward all mails for Calcutta from Bombay, Poonah, Hydrabad, &c. from Ganjam by sea.— The Calcutta Journals from the 11th to the 26th April were due when our paper went to the press.

Madras, April 22.
It is understood that Sindia has departed the notorious Pindaree marauder Sectool of his Jageer, and had given orders to his officers no longer to harbor any of the Pindaree chiefs in his territories.

It was, therefore, supposed that these marauders, driven from their old haunts, will be compelled to make another irruption into the Company's provinces.

By Divine permission, the Rev. James Osbourne will preach at the Baptist meeting house this evening at candle light.

Sully for Sale.
THIS estate, situated in the county of Fairfax, twenty two miles from Alexandria, and the same distance from Georgetown, contains about seven hundred and fifty acres. Little River Turnpike passes through it half a mile from the dwelling house. The situation is handsome, and remarkably healthy; the which was originally excellent, has for some years past had the advantage of improving husbandry, Plaster of Paris acting with powerful and immediate effect on all grasses and grains. The fields present a good surface for cultivation, and those, now untillied, are covered with red clover. The orchards are very large and thrifty; the collection of table fruit is choice and various. The mansion is spacious and well constructed; the outhouses are conveniently situated, and the whole have been lately thoroughly repaired and painted. The farm houses, which are all nearly new, are expensive and excellent in their kind.

be a delightful residence; and a profitable estate for an active farmer. The title is indisputable, and perfectly unincum-bered.
